

Longhop Adelaide Hills 2016 Pinot Gris

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Wine Showcase Magazine

“...Has a bit of get up and go”

“...Chill well and pour with gusto”

REVIEW 2016 LONGHOP PINOT GRIS

Australian Wine Showcase Magazine August 2017

Peter Muscet

93pts Gold ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Campbell Mattinson Wine Front Oct 2016 - 90 Points

Grown at Lenswood and Kersbrook in the Adelaide Hills.

Gentle pink tinge. Dry and crunchy. It boasts perfume and flavour but it's that dry, almost stony bite that characterises it. Gris by name and nature but with a nod to grigio. Has a bit of get up and go.

Rated : 90 Points

Gourmet Traveller Wine - Feb/March 2017

Best Buy Wines $20 and Under

Mike Bennie

This is very easy drinking, very fresh and very bright pinot gris. Best drunk in the prime of its youth, it tastes summery with its bevy of ripe, white flesh orchard fruit flavours and offers up classic honey-drizzled pear perfume. While flavoursome, it doesn't over do the slipperiness in texture, showing a light oiliness that finishes refreshing with a starburst of grapefruit acidity. You could say it is a very well balanced wine in its style. Chill well and pour with gusto. The longhop range always seems to over deliver.

Philip White - Drinkster Jan 2017

Longhop Adelaide Hills Pinot Gris 2016

One of those bottles that emptied before the ink came out the nib - like jeez where'd that go? - this creamy, reassuring, devilishly slick dainty is all silky unction and yum. My favourite whites lately seem to have buttery pear characters in common, like the Rocha, Anjou and luxurious Comice: perfect pears to slurp with a Port Salut or real crunchy Parmigiano-Reggiano. This drink has the pear in its flavour, and yells out for more of it on the plate. With that cheese. Eighteen bucks. Into it!

Winestate Magazine March 2017

Recommended ★ ★ ★

A light well balanced quaffer - with pear like fruit and crisp acidity.

Association of Australian Boutique Winemakers Aug 2017

Bronze Medal Boutique Wine Awards